BDLive - The rand and local bonds weakened further on Tuesday as investors headed for the haven of the dollar as inflation concerns stoke fears that interest rates increases are due soon.

The local currency weakened along with its emerging-market peers as a number of global catalysts kept the appetite for emerging-market assets in check. Wall Street stocks tumbled in a broad sell-off on Tuesday as the upward trajectory of US treasury yields and deepening inflation concerns dampened risk appetite and sent investors fleeing the equities market.

All three major US stock indexes were deep in red territory, with market leading megacap stocks weighing heaviest.

The S&P 500 index and the Nasdaq Composite index were on track for their biggest daily percentage drop since May, and their largest monthly declines since September 2020.

BDLive - Bengaluru — Gold prices eased on Tuesday, hurt by a stronger dollar and rising US Treasury yields, while investors awaited more cues from Federal Reserve officials on the central bank's monetary policy shift.

Spot gold fell 0.1% to $1,748.01 an ounce by 1.15am GMT, while US gold futures were down 0.3% to $1,747.50. The dollar index was up 0.1%, making gold more expensive for holders of other currencies.

Overnight, benchmark 10-year US Treasury yields rose to their highest level in three months.

US Federal Reserve officials on Monday tied reduction in the Fed's monthly bond purchases to continued job growth, with a September employment report now a potential trigger for the central bank's bond "taper".

FarmFutures - Corn prices are feeling the heat of harvest pressure and faced some additional adverse effects from outside markets on Tuesday. The result was a round of technical selling that pushed prices 1.25% lower today. December futures dropped 6.75 cents to $5.3275, with March futures down 6.5 cents to $5.4050.

Corn basis bids were mostly steady to weak on Tuesday, tumbling as much as 33 cents lower at an Iowa processor today. A Nebraska elevator and an Illinois river terminal bucked the overall trend after firming 2 cents, however.

Private exporters reported to USDA the sale of 5.9 million bushels of corn for delivery to Mexico during the 2021/22 marketing year, which began September 1.

At 18% completion, corn harvest is progressing slightly slower than analysts anticipated, when they offered an average trade guess of 19% prior to today's report. It's still three points above the prior five-year average of 15%, however. The vast majority of the crop (97%) is now denting. And 74% is fully mature, which is running well ahead of the prior five-year average of 64%.

Corn crop quality held steady week-over-week, with 59% rated in good-to-excellent condition, 26% rated fair, and the remaining 15% rated poor or very poor. Preliminary volume estimates were for 189,696 contracts, inching fractionally higher than Monday's final count of 189,531.

FarmFutures - Wheat prices eroded steadily throughout Tuesday's session on a round of technical selling spurred partly by widespread losses from other commodities and a stronger U.S. Dollar. Prices remain relatively close to multiyear highs captured earlier this summer, meantime. December Chicago SRW futures dropped 13.5 cents to $7.0875, December Kansas City HRW futures fell 12.75 cents to $7.08, and December MGEX spring wheat futures lost 14.5 cents to $9.07.

Winter wheat plantings moved from 21% completion a week ago up to 34% through Sunday, mirroring analyst expectations. It's also moving slightly faster than 2020's pace of 33% and the prior five-year average of 32%. Nine percent of the 2021/22 crop is now emerged, up from 3% a week ago. Ahead of the next quarterly grain stocks report from USDA, analysts expect to see moderate year-over-year reductions in wheat stocks, moving from 2.158 billion bushels last September down to 1.852 billion bushels. That would be a drop of 14%, if realized.

In Ukraine, 2021/22 winter wheat plantings have reached 29% completion through September 27, according to the country's agriculture ministry. Ukrainian farmers are expected to plant around 16.507 million acres of winter wheat this season, a year-over-year increase of around 9.5% if realized.

FarmFutures - Soybean prices followed a broad range of other commodities lower today, losing nearly 1% by the close after a choppy session. November futures dropped 11.5 cents to $12.76, with January futures down 11.75 cents to $12.8575.

Soybean basis bids spilled 2 to 25 cents lower across half a dozen Midwestern locations on Tuesday. An Indiana processor bucked that overall trend after firming 5 cents higher today.

This year's soybean harvest is running a bit faster than analyst expectations, with 16% completion through Sunday versus an average trade guess of 15%. It's also three points above the prior five-year average of 13%. Three-fourths of the crop is now dropping leaves, up from 58% last week and ahead of the prior five-year average of 66%.

Soybean crop quality remained steady from a week ago, with 58% rated in good-to-excellent condition, 28% rated fair, and the remaining 14% rated poor or very poor.

Ahead of USDA's next quarterly grain stocks report, analysts expect the agency's estimates for soybeans to shrink from 767 million bushels through June 1 down to 174 million bushels through September 1. That would also represent a year-over-year decrease of 67%, if realized.
